Little Things Mean a Lot

November 19 – January 10, 2009

Opening Reception

Wednesday, November 19 6:00 – 8:00 PM

On Wednesday, November 19, the Swan Coach House Gallery and the Forward Arts Foundation will open its annual holiday show and sale of small scale works of art. Approximately 300 works of art by more than 100 contemporary Georgia artists will once again cover the walls of the gallery. Little Things Mean a Lot continues to be the gallery's most popular and anticipated event of the year, for both the participating artists as well as for its patrons. Its popularity has necessitated having to rotate artists from year to year in order to be more inclusive. Therefore, there will be a whole new group of artists in this year's exhibition.

Marianne Lambert, Curator of the Swan Coach House Gallery, says "The fun of Little Things Mean a Lot is in the mixing of important established artists work with newly emerging ones, in offering a variety of artistic styles (from traditional to abstraction), and in showcasing a broad range of mediums including paintings, drawings, sculpture, photography, printmaking, and the crafts. My mission is that there will be a little something for everyone."

The holidays are a perfect time to showcase this type of art. This exhibition provides a great opportunity to buy original works of art by some the areas best artists at modest prices. The artists, most of who are from the Atlanta area, love the challenge of working small and participating in this show. Included in this year's exhibition are:
